

Betty Carroll Fuller, the second oldest of eight children, was born in South Bend Indiana while her father was a student at Notre Dame University. She has strong ties to the Washington, DC area, the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Yonkers, NY but is most of all a Cape Codder. The Cape is where she raised her daughters Heather and Leah and has lived there for most of her life. A mother, grandmother, artist, educator, aging athlete, she is very grateful to live and work in such a beautiful environment and loves the historic and the contemporary community of serious, long haul artists.

Drawing and painting remain the focus of her art practice along with a strong commitment to curatorial projects.

Her work can be seen in various regional exhibits and she is associated with farm project space in Wellfleet
